Public Service Commission Orders That Such Vehicles Stop at All Grade Crossings and Avoid High Gear In Crossing—Must Display Route Signs in Front and Have Artificial Light.

By Telegram to The Freeman. Albany, April 14.—The Public Service Commission today took steps to insure added protection to the public by adopting an order laying down drastic requirements in the operation and equipment of all stage and bus lines throughout the state under the jurisdiction of the commission.

The most important of the new requirements provides all stage and busses must be brought to a full stop not less than 20 feet nor more than 50 feet from any grade crossing of a steam or interurban railroad over which the vehicle must pass, and to require the operator of the motor bus to look carefully in each direction before crossing. If the way is clear, the operator must cross with the transmission not higher than in second gear. In the case of progressive or selective type transmissions, or low gear in the case of planetary transmissions.

Other new requirements which go into effect at once, are as follows:

"That all such vehicles shall conspicuously display route or designation signs in front, and signs near the entrance indicating whether fares are collected on entering or leaving.

"That all vehicles must carry time tables conspicuously displayed and the amount of fare charged.

"That all owners of such vehicles shall by proper rules and regulations cause the operators to comply strictly with the provisions of the general highway traffic and highway laws, respecting speed, rules of the road, signals, parking, loading and unloading, equipment, registration, license of chauffeurs, etc.

"That all such vehicles shall be maintained in a clean and sanitary condition, and shall be lighted by artificial light at such times when being operated."

DUBLIN DREADS EASTER SUNDAY

By Telegram to The Freeman. Dublin, April 14.—Following the failure of the Irish truce conference to reach an agreement, the mutinous faction of the Irish Republican army began to reinforce its troops in Dublin today.

The report that the Irish Republican army rebels are going to oust De Valera from his position as chief leader of the Irish Republicans again became current today.

RIVER FLOOD IS HALTING TRAFFIC

The big freshet in the upper Hudson river at Albany is delaying river traffic. Thursday night the steamer J. H. Tremper of the Central Hudson line, running between Newburgh and Albany, only got as far north as Coxsack due to the high water.

The Cornell line tows are only going as far north as Hudson.

All of the docks in Albany and the lower section of the city along the water front are flooded, and there is no place to berth boats.

The freshet conditions in the upper river are not noticeable off Kingston Point although there have been several high tides in both river and Rondout creek. In some places where the docks along the creek are low the water has overflowed onto the rocks.

MRS. MICHAEL IMPRESSED BY CALIFORNIA MISSIONS

Mrs. M. J. Michael at the meeting of the Kingston High School Parent-Teachers' Association held Thursday gave a very interesting talk of her impressions of California gained on her recent trip to the Pacific coast.

She gave a very picturesque description of the very Gabriel Mission, showing pictures of various scenes about the place. She traced the early educational history of California bringing it down to the high schools of the present day. The high school of Pasadena was particularly referred to and a description of the buildings given as well as various departments including the dairy, agriculture, mechanical and domestic science departments. The address was most interesting and delighted the audience of parents and teachers.

$15,000 POSTAGE ON SILWITCH'S LETTER

Abram Silwitch of Mill street, got a letter from Odessa, Russia, this morning that was so interesting he hurried over to show it at the Freeman office even before he opened it. It was stuck onto one end of a string of Soviet postage stamps nearly three feet long and ten inches wide, well covered with adhesive, each stamp having a face value of 250 rubles. There were 120 of the stamps which would make a total of 30,000 rubles, or well over $15,000 in American money at the normal rate of exchange.

The ruble used to be worth about 34 cents.

The U. S. postal department must rate the ruble as now worth a little better than nothing, since the rate for a letter from here to Odessa is 5 cents. On that basis an American cent would be worth 6,000 rubles, and a dollar's worth would fill a wheelbarrow.

Mrs. Raizen is now in the Raymond Street jail and is the next woman scheduled to be tried in the Kings county court for murder.

It was said at the Tubansky apartment that Mrs. Glickstein would be buried late today because of the Jewish feast day.

Frances Glickstein became so hysterical after learning of her mother's death that a physician had to be called.

PRICE BROTHERS PUT IN JAIL

Harry and Isidor Arrested On New York Warrants Secured By Creditors—Bond Given By Father Proves To Have Insufficient Funds Back Of It.

Harry and Isidor Price of 304 Clinton avenue, who formerly conducted stores under the name of Price Brothers, Lewis Price, and the Outlet Store, at 290 Wall street, and at 36 Broadway, having come from Newburgh where they conducted a store and also one at Poughkeepsie, were placed under arrest this morning by Undersheriff Tunis Haultonbeck and Deputy Sheriff Seth Jeelynn and locked up in the jail. The arrests were made on warrants issued on body executions issued on April 7, by Supreme Court Justice Francis B. Delehanty, of New York city.

The papers show that some time ago they were arrested for conversion but were let go on bond pending an appeal which was not taken. The time having expired, Adolph Goldbergh and Harry Rosenblatt, merchants at 353 Fifth avenue, New York city, on February 3 obtained judgment against Isidor and Harry Price for goods sold and delivered which with interest amounted to $797.74, and as nothing could be found by Sheriff Kolitz to levy upon to satisfy the execution of judgment, the body execution was secured for Goldbergh and Rosenblatt by Jacob Essner, their attorney in New York.

Thursday afternoon, Haultonbeck and Jeelynn placed the Price brothers under arrest and took them before County Judge Fowler where their father, Lewis Price, on examination stated he had an interest amounting to several hundred dollars and personal property, in the large residence, 304 Clinton avenue. It was learned later that less than $400 had been paid on the contract purchase price for the property instead of over $1,200 as claimed by Lewis Price, the father, who gave a bond Thursday afternoon, and because of the insufficiency of the bond, the arrest of Isidor and Harry Price was made this morning.

With costs, added interest and legal fees, the total due on the judgment to date has reached $825.95.

Other matters were talked over but no definite action taken and the board adjourned.

The board also decided to lay William White on top of the concrete on O'Neil street from Broadway to the Elster & Delaware Railroad crossing. This part of the street was laid with concrete to ascertain if concrete could be used to advantage on the city streets. Since then the pavement has become rough due to numerous holes cut into it last fall to make pipe connections.

City Engineer Barrow was instructed by the board to purchase street oil which will be laid on the city streets this spring.

PAPER MAKERS' STRIKE IMPENDS

Employers Propose Renewed Contract at Lower Wage Which Union Head Declares Means Walkout May 1.

By Telegram to The Freeman. New York, April 14.—A strike affecting nearly half a million paper mill workers, which would cut production of newspaper paper 4,500 tons daily, and leave available for newspaper publication purposes only ten days' supply, seemed inevitable for May 1, this afternoon when a bombshell was exploded by the employers at wage negotiations being conducted here.

When representatives of employers and employees met at the Murray Hill Hotel to negotiate a new contract replacing one which expires May 1, the paper makers announced their proposals were a ten per cent cut for skilled workers, return to local rates for the unskilled, and straight time for all overtime, Sunday and holiday work.

Hostile feeling immediately was apparent.

"The proposal is absurd. We cannot accept it," J. T. Carey, spokesman for the paper makers' union declared.

WILL WILLITE B'WAY SECTION

Board of Public Works Decides to Lay Pavement Between Pine Grove Avenue and Cedar Street on Main Thoroughfare—Also on O'Neil Street Block.

At a special meeting of the board of public works, held at the city hall Thursday evening, the board decided to finish the laying of William White on Broadway by paying the stretch between Pine Grove avenue and Cedar street. When the former board of public works decided to lay William White on top of the brick pavement on the main thoroughfare that stretch of street was left open on account of the proposed elimination of the Broadway crossing.

With William White on that part of Broadway it will mean that the thoroughfare from Albany avenue to West Chestnut street will be William White.

The board also decided to lay William White on top of the concrete on O'Neil street from Broadway to the Elster & Delaware Railroad crossing. This part of the street was laid with concrete to ascertain if concrete could be used to advantage on the city streets. Since then the pavement has become rough due to numerous holes cut into it last fall to make pipe connections.

City Engineer Barrow was instructed by the board to purchase street oil which will be laid on the city streets this spring.

JOY IN SACRIFICE

East Indian Ruler's Tribute to Wonderful Woman.

European Lady Who Has Withdrawn From the World to Comfort Victims of Leprosy.

The ruler of Sarawak, writing from Kuching, Sarawak, to a London paper, says:

"I was asked the other day what I considered to be one of the greatest deeds a woman had ever done. This is my answer. Far from the town, along a straight white road fringed by a brown mud ditch and rubber trees, there lives a little pale, unassuming woman; her only companion is a bent and aged Chinaman, who keeps house for her and looks after everything that she needs. The house itself, standing a few yards from the road, is nothing but a native hut made out of rushes and palm leaves, and built on wooden piles.

Passing by, and seeing the woman sewing in her garden, you might say: 'What a strange choice this is—to cut oneself off so entirely from civilization.' But that would be because, hidden among the trees below her, you had not seen the leper camp.

It is true that this little European lady has cut herself off from what is called the world, from the friends that she once knew, and the relations she once had.

But what has she taken to herself in place of them?

An encampment of human souls that no one else dares go near. A herd of beings more terrible than death.

She is not even of their race. They speak to her in every language from their decayed and crumbling mouths. Each day she goes to them—nurses those that are most sick, encourages those that have talents to make use of them.

It is she who occupies the time they spend in waiting to die.

She helps them to tend their gardens. One is a basket-maker, another carves in wood, and all the time her eyes are confronted by the ravages of disease. Things indescribable she sees, and yet her gaze remains pure and unaffected, even joyful, as if that great mission within herself uplifts her from it all.

When I went to visit her I expected to find her morbid, perhaps infinitely sad.

Instead, she talked eagerly and frankly of all that she was doing. "I am so deeply interested in my patients," she said, "that I am busy taking impressions of their thumbs. It is remarkable how the thumbs of a leper bend backwards, and are absolutely flattened at the tips."

She went on to describe how charming some of the lepers are. A few of them are boys of only twelve and thirteen years of age. One or two of them had run away from the camp and had died a horrible death in the jungle.

As I was leaving, she said with a slight smile, "You know the most popular person among us is the coffin maker." That was the only touch of—shall I say—bitterness in the very greatest little woman that I know.

BRITISH TRY TO END QUEER SUPERSTITIONS

Peasants in Palestine Said to Be Kept in Ignorance by Peculiar Beliefs.

The British administration in Palestine is trying to stamp out some of the peculiar superstitions of the fellahs (peasants) and has appointed a committee of district governors to advise it as to the best method of attaining that purpose.

After four years of occupation the authorities are beginning to realize that superstition plays an important role in keeping the peasant in ignorance.

Some of the native beliefs are very interesting. One government official discovered that he had transgressed a tradition the other day when he stepped over a baby's cot as he crossed a village street. His action was noticed by a group of women, who halted him and told him he would have to retrace his steps or the baby would surely die. As their attitude was menacing he did so to save himself from attack.

The same official on another occasion was invited to take lunch with the mukhtar (head) of a village. As he entered the guest chamber he stumbled and fell headlong on the floor. The host told him that his falling was sure to bring bad luck to the village unless he saw fit to forego the lunch.

It is a common practice for girls to visit willies (prophets' tombs) and lay there pieces of their garments believing that by so doing they are sure to be married soon. Sometimes they go without food or drink for seven days for the same purpose.

Married women who have no children, trying to avoid divorce, go to cemeteries and walk over children's tombs in order to have offspring of their own. Often, to be blessed with children, they go to a mosque walk seven times around the building and then smash an egg in the gateway.

These are only a few of the odd customs which are commonly practiced by the fellahs and which the government is anxious to end.

RICH CHINESE GIRL TAKES UP MECHANICAL TRAINING

Miss Annie C. Chan of Shanghai, daughter of Ah Sing Chan, wealthy Chinese coal dealer, and the wife of M. C. Chan, a graduate of New York university and now a cotton mill owner in the Orient, has joined the New Bedford Textile school where she is following her hobby—that of getting a mechanical education. Mrs. Chan hopes to return to her home in a brief time and help her husband as an efficient engineer.

Mrs. Chan would rather learn how to set an automobile engine together than lazily reclining in her millionaire father's sedan chair.

MAN GETS NEW NOSE

Old One Gets Bitten Off, and Fresh Came From His Arm.

Burt Hayes of Van Buren, Ark., is in a Fort Smith hospital with his nose bitten off, and Gould Worley of Fort Smith is nursing the remnants of a finger which was badly lacerated by Hayes' teeth as the result of a chewing and scraping match staged by the two men last off Garrison avenue a few days ago.

Surgeons decided it necessary to graft some flesh on the vacant place on Hayes' face, and as a result he is confined to his bed with his left arm bound to his face, where it will remain for several days until the flesh knits, and his arm is cut free from his new nose. Surgeons say he will have a good looking nose when the operation is completed, although it may not function as well as the old one.

Worley probably will lose a finger, or if he does not it will remain stiff and almost useless, surgeons say. Following the battle, when the two men wallowed in the mud and water and chewed each other up, county officers served warrants charging "fighting and maiming" on the two men, and fixing bounties at $500 each. Their hearing will be had as soon as Hayes' new nose is in such condition that he may appear in court.

New Arizona City Got Name.

Phoenix, Ariz., was built near the well-defined ruins of an ancient pueblo. ## THE GREAT MAN OF CHINA.

Chinese patriots who deplore the continuing disturbance and division in their country, with no strong guiding hand available since it became a republic, must keenly regret that Li Hung Chang could not have lived and retained his powers until the present period. For though a conservative, he had an adaptable mind and wonderful capacity for meeting unforeseen emergencies. He has been pronounced the greatest Oriental statesman and one of the greatest men of modern times. One is the more convinced of this on reading the translation of selected portions of his voluminous memoirs, which show that he had a keen sense of humor as well as the ripened wisdom of a genuine philosopher.

The great Chinese Viceroy visited Europe and America in the year of the last czar's coronation and early in President Cleveland's second administration. He was then 75 years old, but his alert observation and shrewd comment on what he saw in Russia, Germany, France, England and the United States were those of a highly developed intellect in its prime. The two women of the Occident who won his complete admiration were the Czarina and Mrs. Cleveland. He regretted that the "sacred Empress Dowager" of China could not know them both. Of Mrs. Cleveland he wrote: "I could call her the Mother of Graciousness and the Sister of Heavenly Love, a glory to woman-kind the world over." Of his talk with President Cleveland "about wives and women in America and China" he wrote: "He laughed heartily when I told him that it he were President of China he would have, as he has here, but one wife in full legal status, but undoubtedly he would also possess a secondary wife in each province (State), or perhaps more. 'No, no,' he said, 'fears of laughter running down his cheeks; 'It takes a man capable of managing 16 or 18 Chinese women to govern one American girl.'"

Li Hung Chang was delighted with his reception in the United States and nothing escaped his notice, not even the joke about sleepy Philadelphia, to which he comically referred when noting in his diary that in all his travels, no matter how tired he was, only in Philadelphia had he ever fallen asleep during a public address in his honor. In all his shrewd and humorous comment nothing is more entertaining than what he wrote of the American newspaper reporters and his liking for them. With great good humor and amusement he relates what happened after he told one reporter that he was a newspaper man himself, having written much for the Chinese papers which the editors "did not dare refuse," being mostly decrees from the throne. "Evidently that was all he (the reporter) needed for his article that day, for he left me immediately, and the next day I read in one of the New York papers that 'Li Hung Chang is a writer who uses an axe on any man who dares to blue pencil his stuff.'"

The great Viceroy went home to serve well at the head of affairs during China's hopeless war with Japan. As peace negotiator at its end, through his great ability and the universal respect in which he was held, he was able to save his country from dismemberment and from conditions too hard to endure—a lasting service for which he was bitterly denounced by the ignorant among his own people. He died soon after in his 79th year, and there is no reader of his memoirs who can fail to hope that he found peace in the Land of Sunshine and Golden Hours to which he referred so often and so confidently.

Before they repeat their demand for the calling out of the army and navy to compel Prohibition enforcement the extremists would do well to consider the fact that learned lawyers and even strong prohibitionists have contended that the amended Volstead act, which in effect adds prohibition of intoxicating liquors "for medical purposes" to the original prohibition "for beverage purposes," goes beyond both the letter and spirit of the Eighteenth amendment. Perhaps they might do well also to take note of the recent bold charge of Representative Tinkham from Massachusetts, that the House of Representatives is so "completely dominated" by the Anti-Saloon League that it would be "useless" to ask it to investigate the political activities of the organization, that the League has violated the "Corrupt Practices act in failing to file proper lists of campaign expenses, and that 'therefore, I demand that the Department of Justice, which I believe can not be 'intimidated or subverted by political interference and threats of reprisal from whatever source, and whose first duty is to enforce the laws, investigate the facts I have submitted.'"

Writing in the London Nation after a visit to this country, H. W. Nevins, war correspondent, describes the United States as "a land too large for concentrated indignation," a land of "politicians contending for aims more than principles," a land of "Republicans and Democrats, distinguishable only by mutual hatred," etc., etc. Though some of it applies equally well to his own country, on the whole it is rather pointed.

The fire loss in the United States in 1921 reached the record-breaking amount of more than a half billion dollars, and the worst of it is that, according to expert observers, 75 per cent of the loss was preventable.

Burroughs Nature Club Notes

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Dept. of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?
1. I notice a small bird in my orchard, on the trunks of trees a good deal. White underneath, black on top, with a good many white stripes and marks on wings and tail. Can you tell me what it is?

2. What makes the earth worm crawl?
Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. Do sparrows bathe in water? Yes, but they frequently do a sort of bathing by rolling in dust, the latter trick being thought a method of getting rid of lice in the plumage. The sparrow is an exception to the usual custom, in doing both sorts of bathing, as water bathers commonly do not take dust baths, and vice versa.

2. Should daffodil blossoms growing out of doors be picked? Yes, the bulbs do better if the blossom is not allowed to complete its life and begin maturing seed, as this process draws some energy from the bulb. On the other hand, the leaves should be allowed to stay on, as they absorb sunlight and make food to be stored in the bulb for next year's growth.

3. I caught a snake a few days ago and though I give it worms and flies and other things I know snakes like it refuses to eat anything. A friend says snakes never eat in captivity. Why?
It is not true they never eat in captivity. The Reptile Department of the N. Y. Zoological Society uses daily supplies of chickens, mice, young rabbits, etc., etc., for captive snakes. Some snakes, as rattlers, always take warm-blooded food. Other species eat only cold-blooded prey, like frogs, little snakes, etc. It is true that snakes hibernate in winter and remain through cold weather torpid. Possibly this explains the behavior of the captive in question. We advise the owner to find out what species it is, and discover the correct type of food.

DRINK HOT BLOOD

African Natives Take Vital Fluid From Oxen.

Operation Causes No Permanent Injury to the Animal, and May Be Many Times Repeated.

In the heart of East Africa it has been recently reported that several tribes among the Masai, writes K. M. in a London paper.

Similar to the readers of Rider Haggard's early romances, these are the natives of the Dark continent who possess any considerable potential wealth.

Their riches consist in the numberless herds of oxen belonging to this tribe, which graze on the steppes of Kenya colony and Tanganyika territory.

Great nomads, the Masai wander hundreds of miles every year in search of water and pasture for their cattle. They toll not, neither do they spin, and as they never cultivate any crops, neither plant nor reap.

At one time they were greatly dreaded for their warlike prowess. Nowadays, however, they confine themselves to raiding, cattle-thieving, and buckering among themselves over water and grazing rights.

Half a dozen Masai braves promised one day to show me how they drink the blood of bulks without harming the animals.

The majority of these young men were over six feet in height. All carried enormously long assegais with heavy heads (the assegai is a spear they use for throwing). Many had a sword and a buffalo-hide shield as well.

As they strode past my tent it was impossible not to admire the superb dignity of their carriage, their finely chiseled features, and the haughty glance of their hawk-like eyes.

A couple of grimy, grey army blankets were affixed to the shoulders of each man hung down loose, fore and aft, revealing, when they walked, their shapely limbs and lithe torso.

The bullock was soon caught and hung on its side. One man took an arrow and twisted a cloth guard round the barb, so that, when fired, it should not penetrate more than an inch. Another fastened a cloth tourniquet round the animal's neck.

The archer took his stand a foot distant from the ox and shot the shaft he had prepared from the bow into the jugular. A steady trickle of blood, regulated by the tourniquet, started to flow; and the nearest Masai, applying his mouth to the neck, drank the flowing fluid, warm!

When it is thought that enough blood has been withdrawn the tourniquet is removed, the puncture in the artery closes automatically by natural elastic pressure, and the ox is free to go.

Until perhaps a month or two later, it is decided by its owner that he ought to be bled again.

Don't Look a Gift Horse—The woman and the teacher were walking along together when they came to a corner where a pushcart piled high with oranges was attracting many customers.

"Oranges always remind me of Jimmy," said the teacher. "He was a wide-awake youngster who came to me late in the term, having been transferred from another school. About a week after he'd been in my class he presented me with an orange one day at lunch time."

The next day as he went to his lunch, a well-stuffed paper bag peeking out from under his arm, he again gave me an orange. I was afraid the boy might be depriving himself of part of his lunch in order to make an impression on his teacher, so I called him back and asked him if it was perfectly all right for me to have the fruit and if he was sure he wasn't taking it from himself.

"Oh, it's all right," Jimmy told me. "My father gets plenty of oranges. He's an ice man!"—Chicago Journal

Jaundice Invades Country.

Acute infectious jaundice is now epidemic in this country for the twentieth time in seventy-two years. The New York state department of health announced in January that this prostrating and distressing malady had appeared in virtually every section of the state since the New York Times.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, local health commissioner, issued a statement to the effect that jaundice had made its appearance in this city and asked physicians attached to the hospital service, as well as those in private practice, to co-operate with his department in ascertaining more fully the facts with reference to the disease. Reporting any cases that had come to their attention in the last two or three months and submitting important facts regarding the clinical histories of their cases.

Dictaphone Serves Many.

Connecting ten hearing tubes to one dictaphone, so that the same number of pupils can take dictation simultaneously is the method employed by a dictating school in New York city. The single dictaphone is placed on a table around which are grouped the students and the machine has a pipe or metal tube, extending from the connection of the earpieces, to the connection of the earpieces.

Molasses on the Water.

HAVE LIGHT SIDE

Highly Placed Americans Gifted With Sense of Humor.

First Chief Executive Said to Have Seldom Relaxed Their Dignity, but It Is Different Today.

American humor as well as American disposition to take none too seriously on light occasions the most highly placed government officials were well illustrated at the White House the other day when baseball league managers called on the President. "I used to be pretty good catcher," said Mr. Harding, in chatting of younger days with Jacob Ruppert, formerly a Democratic member of congress and now president of the New York American League club. "I'm sorry," said Colonel Ruppert, "but we're fixed for catchers. Did you ever play the outfield?"

Either in Europe or in Asia, exchanges of this sort, at least before the war, would have been regarded as quite "bad form," if not highly presumptuous.

American Presidents of late have been well equipped with a sense of humor. Earlier ones lacked it, says a writer in the Louisville Courier-Journal. Neither Washington nor Jefferson nor (especially) Adams, father and son, nor Andrew Jackson was notably gifted with what has since become known as the earthy sense of "the American sense of humor." "The Father of His Country" could, and sometimes did, relax. Once, it is recorded, he "rolled over and over on the lawn at Mount Vernon" in laughing at something that highly amused him. Usually, however, Washington was stern, unbending—a manner befitting the imperial man, the unblemished gentleman that he was. Jackson on his death-bed, when asked there was not something he was sorry for, answered in the affirmative, adding that he was "sorry" he had not humored his political enemies.

Lincoln's humor is too well known to require illustration. "Liberties" he took with others. Others seldom took "liberties" with him. Though often the target for his own jest, he rarely was for jests of others. Grant was likewise, though Grant had a rare sense of humor, as often is the case with "silent" and apparently stolid men. Characteristic of this humor of Grant's is his thrust at his friend, Rosecrans, concerning the price of a horse bought by Grant. "Isn't he a beauty?" exclaimed Grant to Conkling. "How much did you give for him?" asked Conkling. "Six hundred dollars," said Grant. "I bought him of a butcher on the avenue." "Well, Mr. President," said Conkling, "I don't think he's worth the money." "That's what the butcher thought, senator," said Grant.

Graver Cleveland knew how to take a joke and how to crack one. Some of his best jokes were unconsciously humorous. While once praising a certain New York newspaper that had ardently supported him, he was asked by one of its editors what feature of the paper pleased him most. "I like it all," said Mr. Cleveland, "and especially this last column over here on the editorial page—a column that was made up of 'jokes' scooped from other newspapers." When Li Hung Chang on his visit to America, was received at the White House he was introduced to Mrs. Cleveland, at that time a rarely beautiful bride. "How many wives have you?" queried the Chinese viceroy of President Cleveland. "One," said the President. The viceroy chuckled. Drawing near and nudging Mr. Cleveland amiably with a gold-headed ivory stick, Li Hung Chang said: "Oh, I know you have only one—here. But how many have you—in the provinces?" One of Mr. Cleveland's biographers says that few jests were relished so keenly by Mr. Cleveland as was this one. It revealed to him China more illuminatingly than did all else that Viceroy Li had to say to him.

The American sense of humor is the bridge that enables the American people to cross over deep-dyed the Red Sea that separates them from their Presidents—the bridge that enables their Presidents to cross over the Red Sea that separates chief magistrates of the nation from the people.

Climates Not Changing. The climates of the world have not changed in the last ten years, nor in the last ten centuries, for that matter, says Charles F. Talman, of the United States weather bureau, in the Mentor Magazine. "Old-fashioned winters, the kind we don't get now," have always been talked about. Even in Ben Franklin's day, pamphlets were published describing changes in the climate of the United States. It is human nature to remember the exceptional seasons, such as the winter of 1917-1918, and compare every season with them, thus giving rise to the belief that climates change, says Talman, whereas daily checks at 30,000 weather bureaus throughout the world show that the average weather condition has remained unchanged for hundreds of years.

No Season Wholly Good. Mr. Subbuh—Thank goodness the summer's gone and winter is here, when I won't have to bother about mowing the lawn and watering the garden.

Mrs. Subbuh—That's so. By the way, I wish you'd see that there is coal in all the rooms, and look up your spade and broom for sweeping away the snow. And John, be ready in case a pipe bursts.—London Answer.

IRISHMEN ONCE WORE KILTS

Assertion Made by New York News-paper—Bagpipes Differed From Those of the Scots.

There is no more doubt that kilts and plaids were worn in early times in Ireland than there is that the kilt was worn in early times in Scotland. The New York Evening Telegram.

In Ireland kilts of one color—often—were used. Nothing like the tartan, by which the various Scottish clans are still distinguished, was ever arrived at.

Irish bagpipes were of a simple type. They were not blown, but pumped and never reached the high state of development of the war instrument so closely associated with Scots fighting regiments for hundreds of years and with life in the highlands.

The Irish guards have had the pipes since their formation as a result of the Boer war.

Among those in private life who affected the use of Irish kilts in town as well as country in recent years was one of the brothers of the present Lord Ashbourne, son of the former lord chancellor.

In many minute details as to equipment, dress and custom there was a close parallel between the two countries.

Antique gold ornaments in the Dublin museum, of the same type as those of the ancient Scots, are different in sculptural design. But in both instances the workmanship is distinctly Celtic.

Both countries had the clan system. In Ireland the chiefs, so often inaccurately described as "kings," were nothing but the heads of families, with the dependents and slaves.

In going back to the Celtic dress and music the Irish are reemulating what the Scots never entirely abandoned.

THIS YOUTH NO PLAGIARIST

Schoolboy's Composition on "Lamb" That Is Certainly Nothing If Not Strictly Original.

The teacher, with a class of fourth-grade boys, considers her profession anything but a bore. "Few would be bored if they could look over the compositions my children turn in," she confided to the Woman. She invited her to glance over a certain choice piece of literature; the "thesis," as she calls it, follows:

"Story on Lamb—

"Lamb is a noun and its a common one, to, only when it gets tough its murtion. I don't like it then because its harder to chew. When its alive before its killed and sent to the boochers its called a sheep because its an old lamb. It eats a lot of grass and when you by it in the boochers you must know the different parts because some are fat and some are skinny. You always must cook them because you can't eat them raw. They take the wool of the lamb back and wash it because it is always dirty and then they put it in ink to make it black and then make stockings and suits out of it. I have a blue suit and I guess they put it in blue to make it that way. Thats all I know about lambs."—Chicago Journal.

Voice Carried 5,500 Miles.

By means of the transcontinental telephone line a connection was extended to San Francisco and thence south to Los Angeles, where, by means of a radio telephone connection, the circuit was extended to Catalina Island, thirty miles distant in the Pacific. Satisfactory conversation was thus carried on between Catalina and Ouba, a distance of something over 5,500 miles. This is the greatest distance over which commercial telephone service has thus far been established.

The Cuba cables are the longest deep sea telephone cables in use, and embody in practical form a number of the recent scientific developments. To provide for the traffic expected three of these cables were successfully laid. Each cable is capable of carrying simultaneously one telephone conversation and eight telegraph messages.

No Backache for the Healthy.

That lumbago, sciatica and other forms of backache are to be regarded as reflex neuralgias, like that due to decayed teeth, is a theory advanced by Dr. Folke Lindstedt of Stockholm, as the result of examinations of 1,578 recruits for the Swedish army. Out of the total number, 1,578,117, or 7.4 per cent, had suffered from lumbago, sciatica or backache. Among those with "serious morbid conditions," the number who had suffered from lumbago was 24.5 per cent; among those with minor ailments, the number was 6.1 per cent, and among the perfectly healthy it was only 1.7 per cent. In the case of sciatica, 3.46 per cent of those with serious morbid conditions had suffered, and only 0.12 per cent of the healthy recruits.

Seized Their Opportunity.

At the beginning of the great war, Christiania tried to husband her man power by employing women as street car conductors. Some objections were raised at first, but in time the traveling public took a real liking to the conductorette on the ground that she was more civil than a mere man. Though there has been an official order to renege that, it is noticeable that the women conductors have gradually disappeared. Asked what had become of them, the chief of transit in the Norwegian capital replied that as they had constant opportunity to meet men, so many of them had married that the rest had just naturally resigned.—New York Evening Post.

FEDERAL-AID ROAD PROGRAM

Secretary of Agriculture Is Considering Tentative Draft of Rules and Regulations.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The secretary of agriculture is considering a tentative draft of rules and regulations for the administration of the federal highway act, approved last November, under which $75,000,000 is appropriated for the construction of federal-aid roads, but will not promulgate them until he has conferred with representatives of the state highway departments. The secretary is impressed with the need for closest possible co-operation between the federal government and the states in the development of the federal-aid highway system called for by the act, and the value and serviceability of the system will not be jeopardized by a hasty decision as to the rules which will comprise it or the regulations to be followed in carrying out the purposes of the legislation.

Fifty million dollars of the appropriation became available January 1. The remaining $25,000,000 was made immediately available upon approval of the act, November 9, last.

In formulating the fundamental rules which will govern the states and the federal government in administering the law, the Department of Agriculture is seeking the counsel of the state highway departments as represented by the executive committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials. Members of the committee are: George P. Coleman, state highway commissioner, Virginia; Paul D. Sargent, chief engineer, Maine; Austin B. Fletcher, state highway engineer, California; W. R. Neel, state highway engineer, Georgia; Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture; George E. Johnson, secretary, department of public works, Nebraska; Ira R. Bowring, member of highway commission, Utah.

His first literary adventure was into Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," and it was followed by every other book he could lay hold of. Of course his field was limited. In those ancient days little was published in Boston other than sermons, essays, political pamphlets and learned treatises. But Franklin didn't care whether they were interesting or not. What he was concerned with was matter for reading. He wanted to learn the language. He desired to write it and speak it more effectively than any man of his time, and he certainly attained a rank with the finest of them.

A Modern Machine Working on a Rutty Highway.

R. J. Windrow, state highway engineer, Texas; W. D. Uhler, state highway engineer, Pennsylvania; and D. P. Olson, director, bureau of highways, Idaho.

Pending definite decision upon details of the federal highway system, each project submitted by the states will be examined with the utmost care by the bureau of public roads to determine whether it is likely that the roads proposed will come within the federal system as finally selected. The department regards the approval of the states as of great importance. Each project submitted in advance of the highway act upon the system of a whole will have an effect in determining the system. Location of the projects, choice of routes, and character of improvements proposed will be given due study.

Each state highway department has been requested to submit an even as ## possible to the Department of Agriculture

a tentative map showing routes proposed for primary and secondary systems. In examining and passing upon these recommendations special consideration will be given to social and economic questions involved, such as service to population, established trend of traffic, existing industries, natural resources, etc. In considering plans for individual projects special attention will be devoted to grade crossings, gradients, curvature, bridges, general drainage conditions, location of materials, supplies, etc.

Much Money for Roads.

Receipts of the automobile division of the Pennsylvania highway department reached the enormous total of $9,377,401 last year, the largest in the history of the division. This amount is an increase of more than $2,000,000 over the receipts of 1920.

Cleanliness Leads to Success.

Given a chance, poultry will return good profits on the investment. Cleanliness is one of the best guarantees of success.

Roads Built in 1921.

Nearly 25,000 miles of good roads have been constructed in this country in 1921.

Fight High Freight Rates.

Good roads are the weapons which farmers need to fight high freight rates.

Franklin's Love for Books.

Benjamin Franklin had an overpowering desire—a desire which gripped him to the end of his life, and to which he gave himself over without stint. That was a desire for books. He read omnivorously. If you know what means—and if you don't, look it up in the dictionary. He stole time from his work and play, and leisure, and persuaded his fellow apprentices to flick books for him from their master's shops.

His first literary adventure was into Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress," and it was followed by every other book he could lay hold of. Of course his field was limited. In those ancient days little was published in Boston other than sermons, essays, political pamphlets and learned treatises. But Franklin didn't care whether they were interesting or not. What he was concerned with was matter for reading. He wanted to learn the language. He desired to write it and speak it more effectively than any man of his time, and he certainly attained a rank with the finest of them.

Notable Pictures.

A remarkable collection of pictures, which will be more highly prized as years go by, is the series of American aeronautical photographs which ex-Major Ernest Jones, army air service, has gathered during his 15 years in this work. They cover the development of aeronautics, particularly aviation, from 1903 to 1917. The 1,800 photographs visualize the successive steps made by the Wright brothers, Curtiss, Thomas, Witterman and other pioneers in this country. Some of these are the only pictures in existence of certain machines and events. "It is probable," says United States Air Service, "that this is the most complete collection of air photographs in America."—Exchange.

Dehydrating Foods.

Preservation of foods in the home by dehydration has been made possible, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, by the production of an orelike arrangement manufactured by a New York company. In operation, a number of trays containing the food to be dehydrated are placed in the apparatus, while underneath there is a pan, or humidifier, having a certain amount of water in it and which has been previously heated to the proper temperature.

Tragedy Ended Youthful Love.

When I was eight years old I had a boy. One day he gave me a ring, which I prized very much. When I was at his house one day his mother saw the ring. She had been looking all over for it. Needless to say I gave her the ring and she gave Johnny something. That ended my first love affair.—Chicago Journal.

ART IN CUTTING DIAMONDS

Peculiar Properties of the Precious Gem Must Be Thoroughly Understood by the Lapidary.

A diamond cutter, writing for the London Mail, relates some interesting facts as to forms into which diamonds are cut to enhance their luster. A diamond is the hardest substance in nature and cannot even be scratched except with another diamond, while some stones can be cut only with their own powder.

Yet the hardest of all can be split by a heavy blow delivered in the right direction; that is, parallel to the faces of the eight sides which "its crystal shows. It is this property that permits the very large stones, such as the 'Cullinan' diamond, to be worked.

In spite of this, a diamond has the simplest composition of all precious stones for it is only crystallized carbon, and a near relation to ordinary graphite, usually called "blacklead."

But it has been formed by enormous pressure in the remotest depths of the earth's crust, and probably forced toward the surface by steam.

The principal forms into which a diamond is cut are:

Brilliant, with an octagonal face surrounded by many smaller facets.

Rose diamonds, with a flat base above which are two rows of triangular facets, the uppermost terminating in a point.

Table diamonds, which are thin stones cut with triangular facets.

What makes the diamond so precious is the presence of in-wed "fire"—the mysterious gleams of light that change with every movement and which makes such an appeal to our sense of beauty.

The charm of precious stones lies in their brilliancy and luster, the tenser of the latter depending upon the polish of the surface; for if the stone is dull or uneven the light is scattered and not reflected.

The only stones at all approaching it are zircon and the green garnet called "olivine." The latter of all other stones is vitreous, such as seen on the surface of broken glass.

In order to bring out the full beauty of a stone it must be cut in such a way that the facets reveal its splendor, and the art of the lapidary rests upon his knowledge of what becomes of the light when it falls upon the stone; so he must understand the laws of reflection and refraction.

When a white light is refracted into a colorless stone it changes and is split up into a spectrum. Since the refractive index increases progressively as the wavelength of the light decreases, a normal spectrum is violet at one end and passes through green and yellow to red at the other end; for instance, in the familiar rainbow. The width of the spectrum also varies, and it is this "dispersion" that determines the "fire."

It would be difficult to name any substance around which has been woven such a web of romance.

Safety Deposit Free.

The story comes from Scotland and it shows all the shrewd points and are not in the large centers of population. A stranger of ordinary appearance and apparently of moderate means walked into the bank and asked to borrow $5. He was told the bank did not loan such small sums, but when he insisted that the business of a bank was to loan money, that he needed the sum mentioned, and that he had good collateral, the note was made out, the banker regarding it as a good joke. Then the stranger pulled out $10,000 worth of Liberty bonds as collateral and left them, remarking that at another bank that had wished to charge him $5 for a safety deposit box to keep them in, but now the bank would keep them for him free, and he would have the bank's $5 to make himself with.—London Daily News.

SHIP SAVED BY CAPTAIN'S SKILL

Breaks Out in Hold of Potomac in North Sea.

FLAMES FOR 16 HOURS

Captain Macleod Swings Vessel sharply to Port, Throwing 400 Tons of Water on Blaze and Quenching It—Was Ready to Beach Ship on Dutch Coast to Save the Passengers—Firemen Held to Their Work by Officers With Drawn Revolvers.

By presence of mind on the part of the master of the steamship Potomac, a fire which had been blazing for 16 hours was extinguished and the safety of the vessel secured. Two members of the crew had been overcome with smoke and another who had been struck on the head by a piece of iron, had recovered when the ship reached port. Two engineers had to stand guard in the engine room with drawn revolvers over the Spanish and Philippine stokers who wanted to get out on deck. The fire, which was in No. 4 hold, right next to the furnaces, made things too warm for natives of the tropics. The Potomac sailing from Bremen for New York was 53 miles out in the North sea skirting the Dutch coast when the quartermaster reported that smoke was coming out of No. 4 hatch, where the provisions were stored. Capt. William Macleod, who had just turned in, was notified by the officer of the watch and word was sent to Chief Engineer E. M. Garland, who had been on duty for two days and nights in Bremen overhauling the machinery and had just gone to his cabin.

Pumps Have Little Effect.

The pumps were started and the chemical apparatus was turned into the hatch where the blaze was raging, but had little effect. At 1 a. m. the blaze had gained so much headway that the heat could be felt by the watch who were working down the decks. The crew worked quietly and bravely were stationed at the communication ways to prevent passengers from coming on deck and impeding the work of the crew. By this time the spare straw mattresses stowed under No. 4 hatch had caught on fire and the pungent smoke made it difficult for the engineers and officers to get along the narrow decks to direct the hose on the fire.

The pumps worked steadily injecting tons of water into the hold, and the passengers, who had been unaware of the fire until they got up for breakfast, watched the crew at work without any signs of panic because they realized that the ship was not far off and that they would be saved by steamers standing by their blazing craft.

At 3 p. m. the next day the ship was listed to starboard, and with 400 tons of water which had been pumped into No. 4 hold to quench the fire, which was on the port side, Captain Macleod decided that he had to take sudden and drastic action if he wished to save the ship.

Firemen Become Restive.

About this time the foreign firemen and coal passers became restive and did not want to stop down below, but the presence of Assistant Engineers Edward Standish and Henry Topping with big navy revolvers in their hands decided them to stick on the job. Realizing that he could not get the fire under control from between decks, the captain stopped the ship just before 5 a. m. and sent men over the side in heave's chairs with sledges hammers to smash in the ports opening into the blazing hold.

Lines of canvas hose were run over the side to the seamen, who placed the nozzles through the broken ports directly onto the fire. Just at that time a German steamer bound for Bremen came up and hove to within a quarter of a mile of the Potomac, and stood by to see if Captain Macleod needed assistance. While he did not admit this, the officers said that the captain had decided to run into the Dutch coast and beach the vessel if the fire could not be got under control before it spread to the passenger quarters.

After sending word to the engineer in charge below to give her every pound of steam he could, the captain ordered the quartermaster to put the helm hard sport, and as her bow swung over the ship recovered her list to starboard and the water went over to the opposite side of the hold with a noise like a tidal wave and knocked seven bells out of the fire, as the captain said. From that time it was under control, and the flames gradually died out, after destroying a considerable quantity of stores.

MILLIONS IN BUFFALO HEAD

Indian Fighter Told of "Reviewing" Quadruped Army That Had Front of Ten Miles.

The famous Indian fighter General Maus, who lost an eye in border skirmishes with renegades and received the congressional medal of honor for gallantry in an Apache campaign, told me about seventeen years ago of a dramatic incident in which he participated in the middle '70s. As a young lieutenant, with an orderly and two Indian scouts, he was trailing the great Nez Perce Chief Joseph in his flight from Oregon to Canada.

The American scouting party came into an open prairie country in Idaho. They paused on a tiny hillock, scanning the horizon. The Indians dropped, ears to ground. They signaled. Presently all with ears down heard it distinctly, the hump, hump, hump of rhythmic beat, and far off, of a mighty host marching.

Buffalo:

They came into view; they approached. General Maus described the great spread of that quadruped army, at least five miles wide each way, making a ten-mile front. The scouts fired their carbines to deflect the avalanche so that the leaders would turn aside and not come directly over the hillock. One horse early reared, broke away, fled and was engulfed in the herd. Two of the other horses uttered queer, loud, whining squeals, and all of them trembled in abject terror with quivering knees and reared repeatedly.

For four solid hours that herd kept coming on and passing. We figured the possible numbers, with the progress at about ten miles an hour and the herd closely massed. It went into millions. General Maus related it as the most amazing experience he ever had witnessed. He had described it to Frederic Remington and had offered to guide him to the spot and describe details, but Remington seemed not sufficiently interested in that buffalo stampede as an epic in American life that long since has vanished.

Says Girls Have Improved.

Howard Chandler Christy, the artist, has a different idea about American girls.

"What do I think of the changes in the American girl?" he repeated. "Well, I like her better today than ever. With freer clothing and freer thinking girls have improved physically and mentally. Think of those corseted, high-heeled, rather stiff girls of twenty-five years age and the uncourteous, free young persons of today! The American girl has not been fair in the least by her broader education and knowledge.

"To whom should one lay the blame for the flapper?" he was asked.

"Well, I have noticed that whenever a sweet, refined, innocent, simple girl enters a room filled with flappers, all the men make for the sweet young girl at once."

"Yes, and then—?"

"And then they immediately proceed to make a flapper of her!" he replied.—Alice Robe in the Minneapolis News.

New English Wing.

A new type of wing which is of the utmost importance to aviation has just been perfected in England after more than ten years of experimenting. The new wing is built with the object of increasing the lifting power of machines, and the first tests have been satisfactory. An airplane fitted with the new wing, seen from a distance, looks like a huge scyphoid with wing tips depressed. Instead of two rigid, horizontal straight planes, a single rigid plane is used, which, from the center, curves outwards and downwards to the tips. No fabric is used in the manufacture of the wing. Its surface is of mahogany veneer, thus making it better able to withstand all kinds of weather.

Meteorology.

For the last three years a course in weather science applied to aeronautics has been given in the University of California at the southern ranch, located in Los Angeles. The present year at the university started with a large enrollment of freshmen and sophomores and bids fair to eclipse the preceding years in interest and accomplishment. The majority of the members of the class are students in the engineering department of the university. Sixty-nine members are taking the course in aeronautic meteorology. The object of the course is to make the students thoroughly conversant with the principles and practical application of meteorology applied to aeronautics.

KNITTED DRESS WINS APPROVAL

Both Suit and Blouse of This Material Now May Be Very Elaborate.

EMBROIDERIES ARE IN FAVOR

Chinese Decorations, Including Colorings, Are Used—Many Jersey Suits Trimmed With Borders in Angora Effect.

Interesting developments are taking place in knitted dresses—developments which have caused them to assume characteristics of the best models in cloth or silk.

The prolonged vogue for crepe de chine became very tiresome. The run on one fabric was too great. It was necessary, declares a fashion writer in the New York Tribune, to think of ways of interesting the public in other materials, not necessarily new fabrics but anything that would divide the interest shown in crepe de chine. It was an exceedingly clever idea to elaborate the knitted dress and make it beautiful enough to be very desirable. This not only created a tremendous demand for all knitted fabrics but brought eager customers to the doors of those who specialize in the type of dress that required such materials.

In knitted material and in jerseys the demand reached a certain point and stood still for some time, because no one thought of using them for anything but the plain tailored suit or frock. Heretofore knitted dresses, suits and blouses have belonged in the realm of sport clothes. In them we have had many beautiful costumes, it is true, but they were all in designs suitable for country wear.

Take on Much Elaboration. Now we have the knitted dress much elaborated. There is the knitted suit and the knitted blouse, which may be very elaborate, but the chief interest centers around the one-piece dress, not in the bright colors that we formerly had in sport clothes but in the shades that might be chosen for afternoon dresses.

We have the knitted suit consisting of a skirt and Russian blouse, the costume consisting of a knitted sweater very often in Russian blouse style, and skirt of plain jersey, the straight-line knitted dress trimmed with knitted bands in a strikingly contrasting color from the frock itself and very intricate in pattern, and the dress with a cape to match.

One model which is proving immensely popular is of dark gray silk, relieved by a fancy woven pattern in a rusty copper tone intermingling with black.

Another knitted suit is developed in navy blue and gray. It has the wide sleeves, the skirt panels and all the touches that would be required by a smart tailored suit whether it be developed in woven or knitted fabric.

Chinese Theme in Evidence. Black jersey, with Chinese embroideries in yellow and white, features prominently in some models. Knitted fiber bands on wool jersey suits and blouses are seen. The Chinese theme runs through the embroideries. If the design is not Chinese, then Chinese colorings are used. A novelty of one maker is called sporting domino. It is a white wool sweater suit with a domino design embroidered in deep green. The shawl collar, girdle and cuffs are of the same vivid hue.

Another well-known sports-wear blouse is showing many wool jersey suits trimmed with borders in angora effect called laine grise.

In suits of knitted fabrics, any number of which are being made up for the new season, the French exchequer the conservative skirt and coat type, preferring those of the skirt and jumper overblouse sort, or a skirt and sweater, the sweater in Russian blouse style.

Most interesting suits consist of a skirt and a high-necked sweater open at the front in coat style and belted about the hips in Russian blouse effect. These will play a prominent part in the country wardrobe for the spring, and will be worn to the mountains in the summer. Striking are the colors seen in such suits.

Combination of Colors.

There are rich yellows combined with blacks, or yellow may be combined with blue. Or a suit may be of white, striped with yellow or Chinese blue, or entirely of the yellow and blue. There are beautiful tones of lavender, mauve and violet and a charming blue green. A real achievement in the art of dyeing is seen in the pastel, the gray and the brown shades, which are very rich in tone.

A prominent designer, who is always expected to develop something new in sport clothes for the St. Morris and Riviera season, has had great success with the simple dress having a matching cape. One of the smartest models recently brought out is a two-piece blouse dress of white wool tasha, which has a cape trimmed with a broad fur collar in straight band style.

Indications point to an extensive use of cotton dresses. Whether France is presenting cotton fabrics owing to the high cost of raw silk and the difficulty of competing in fabrics of that kind is a moot question. But the fact remains that Paris manufacturers are busily engaged on cotton dresses for export in large quantities.

The favorite is a crepe which has come into prominence since it has been taken up by the Paris dressmakers. A year ago everybody was asking for crepe de chine, crepe georgette and cotton voile. Now the vogue has turned to crepe roumays.

Ornamentation Much the Same.

Ornamentation is much the same on these dresses as it was on voile dresses last summer. Cotton crepe dresses are being hand-drawn, decorated with hand and machine embroidery and with fine cut steel and crystal beads in all colors. One of the most interesting novelties is the cashmere colored head which lends itself beautifully to the Oriental patterns now creeping into the embroidery designs.

The Russian influence is noted in many of the new designs in cotton dresses. This means the low belt and the full sleeve. In dresses of this type sleeves are very wide and many of them short. The ornamentation is done with a distinctly Russian feeling, concentrating on bands and motifs rather than appearing in the scattered all-over designs of last season.

Every indication points to the crepe roumays dress, despite its comparatively low price, remaining in the novelty class. The mills in France have not produced enough of this material to take care of the sudden demand. Manufacturers of dresses and blouses will, therefore, be much retarded in their quantity deliveries. This will mean that the shops cannot have these dresses in any great quantity before midsummer, which will naturally keep the crepe roumays dress in the more exclusive lines.

Cotton crepes are in beautiful shades such as are not often seen in wash materials. The beige and gray tones are remarkable. One expects beautiful bright lines in wash fabrics, and while the usual pink and blues are seen little attention is paid to them because of the impression created by the stronger colorings. Many of the colors resemble the brilliant hues of a sunset in the autumn.

In the new cotton crepe frocks color is paramount. When white crepes are used color is unobtrusively applied by means of embroideries and beads.

Strange to say, few separate girdles are used on these dresses, their makers relying on the embroidery or bead work to produce the effect of a belt or girdle about the hips. Very often the dress hangs perfectly straight and is beltless, but there is always a band of embroidery where a belt ordinarily would be placed.

Setting the Styles.

"Why are you so sympathetic with France's reluctant attitude with reference to international money matters?" "I'm hoping," answered Miss Cayenne, "that my Paris dressmaker will regard it as unfashionable to insist on being paid so punctually."

Jury Brinks Evidence in Liquor Case. Because they drank the half-pint of evidence in the liquor case of a Philadelphia saloonkeeper, Judge Shoemaker reprimanded and discharged the jury that had deliberated for hours.

SUIT FOR BUSINESS WOMAN

This diagonal tweed suit of gray promises to win favor with the business woman who has no time for frills. A becoming hat of wool and straw with colored embroidery adds a touch of refinement.

SPORT TOGS; OTHER APPAREL

Vogue for Homespun and Tweed Material; Spring Hosiery, Shoes and Gloves.

At present, there is a great vogue for sport garments of homespun and tweed. These materials fashion the most attractive suits in alluring colors, periwinkle, apple blossom, vermillion and adobe. Undoubtedly these suits will make a strong appeal to the business woman next spring, as they possess excellent wearing qualities and are reasonable in price. Garments of knit fabrics are also most popular. Little straightline dresses, capes which fall in graceful folds, sweaters and three-piece suits.

Flowing sleeves continue to be worn but are now often attached to the wrist by the use of ribbons, or of jeweled bracelets, or bands of jet or onyx. In fact, jewelry is worn to a marked degree just at present; necklaces, earrings, bracelets and fancy knifles, all adding a barbaric note of richness to many an otherwise understated costume. The fun, too, continues to occupy a prominent place in the affections of the debutante as well as in the matron's, and even the flat nosegay often accompanies frocks which simulate the quaint moires of the Thirties.

Looking back in retrospect to a year ago one realizes that skirts after all are much longer, though whether they will attain the ankle-length of those worn by our Parisian sisters remains to be seen. With these long skirts come the large flat-trimmed hats.

In the new spring hosiery, colors continue to rival black, and light tones such as gray, beige, sand and taupe are favored. It is expected that these delicate shades will be worn with black as well as with matching shoes. The white stocking also will be to the fore if the vogue for the light-colored cotton dress materializes, and they are shown in fancy weaves as well as with colored stripes.

The light shades in gloves, both kid and suede, are also preferred to black—French gray, sand, mode and even white being offered for street wear. These spring gloves will be long, the gauntlet and the 12 and 16-button length being the choice. As to footwear, it is still too early to say whether the strap slipper will retain its popularity or not. Some exceedingly attractive low-heeled sport oxfords are already shown, while patent leather in combination with gray or beige suede are very good looking.

AFTERNOON GOWNS OF CREPE

Embroidered in Matching Silk; Design Recalls That Used for Spanish Shawls.

Afternoon gowns are frequently of crepe; almost entirely embroidered in matching silk, in a design which recalls that used for Spanish shawls. A delightful combination shown consists of a cape of black crepe marocain, with a great square let into the back, of embroidered putty-colored crepe, while the gown is of the lighter crepe, entirely embroidered. Many of these gowns have long, tight sleeves, but the great square chignon sleeve still persists.

Models which might be worn for formal afternoon occasions, or for informal evening affairs. Sometimes have the entire bodice made of a finely patterned silk lace, rather bloused at the waist, and cut with long, tight sleeves, while the skirt is of matching crepe de chine, often entirely embroidered. Mauve and periwinkle blue are two colors favored for these gowns.

Peter Pan Blouse Popular. Peter Pan blouses are generally worn with sport costumes.

Arrangement. Contrast is a good thing, but we must observe the laws of harmonious contrast, and unless we have space enough to secure these, it is better to be content with unity and simplicity, which are always to be had.—Lainie Hunt.

In Armenia thousands of children in scanty rags begging for bread, wandering the roads seeking for refuse or lying dead in the cities or around the countryside—as against the motor cars, costly clothes, peace, plenty, and happiness of America.

"FEED MY LAMBS"

The food that is in your larder in reality is not yours. It has come to you through propitious circumstances as well as through the endeavors of your own hands. Under similar conditions, the people of Armenia would also be well-fed and happy and prosperous.

War, invasion, civil war and drought—widespread disaster beyond human control—have reduced them to the condition in which they find themselves today.

What can the impotent Armenian do? What could you do under similar circumstances?

Only one thing. Beg mercy. Appeal for generosity. Can you, knowing that circumstances alone protect you from a like fate, refuse either?

Up to date, the Near East Relief, through the generosity of the American public (which has given $60,000,000), has saved the lives of a million Armenians. Of these, over 100,000 children are safe behind the walls of orphanages, where they are being fed, clothed, housed and educated for the industrial and agricultural rehabilitation of their country.

"The Seed Corn of a Great Race"

But for every child inside, there is at least one, half-naked, outside, who would be turned away hungry were it not for the Near East Relief bread lines. It is 25,000 of these children in the Transcaucasian famine zone, who will have to be abandoned, owing to a 25 per cent reduction in appropriations, if you do not respond to the Lenten Sacrifice Appeal.

These are the children of the oldest Christian nation on earth, the hope of the Armenian people, "the seed corn of a great race." Shall they rejoice their outcast brothers? Or will you help us save them?

"GLORY" OF WAR RIDICULOUS

Chaplain Who Was With the British Forces in France Makes Some Pertinent Observations.

Making boots is more glorious than killing men, asserts the Rev. Studdert Kennedy the liberal English clergyman who was known to the British forces during the war as "Woodbine Willie."—a designation he has since used as a noun de plume. Mr. Kennedy, says the Literary Digest, who was an army chaplain, came out of the war with a shocked conscience and new convictions, and his sympathy has been with Tommy Atkins as he is at home, fighting a different fight now that the war is over. When he read the words, "The Glorious Dead," on the cenotaph in London, Mr. Kennedy said he felt "somewhat bitterly about it, because there is such danger of mistaking the real meaning of their glory." There is something wrong when a man is called glorious because he wears khaki, and a "bolshy" and a selfish schemer because he wears overalls. As the Challenge (London) quotes him from a recent sermon, the former army chaplain declares that "many persons who were willing to sweep floors for Tommy, spit fire at the working-man. Yet they are the same man. We call going into the army 'going into the service.' Don't you go into the service when you make boots? It is more glorious to work as a shoe cobbler than to kill men," he argues. "But a man makes good boots for 30 years, brings up his family decently, and gets the sack. Who thinks about his glory?" Much talk about military courage is "stupid sentimentality," says Mr. Kennedy for—"A great deal of the courage in battle is not of the highest order at all. What we want today is the courage of moral conviction. I don't want to detract for a moment from the bravery of our men. I love them. But it was a great deal easier to face death in battle than it is to face ridicule in civil life. To suppose that all men died glorious deaths is sheer sentimentality. I have seen them slithering with fright like trapped rabbits. Nothing will cover up the fact that war is a degrading, dirty, filthy business. We must simply refuse to be bamboozled by shams."

Less Costly Dealing.

"The portrait painter charged me $1,000 to do me in oil," said the man who had just cleaned up in the stock market. "You get off cheap," replied the man who had been on the losing side. "In the future I think I'll have my dealings with a painter instead of a broker."

Under a Microscope.
Although nearly every flower presents new beauties of detail when viewed through a microscope, not every one resembles the illustration to some far Eastern wonder tale, as does the swamp saxifrage. Anything but lovely at first unimagined glance, this humble flower proves fascinating when seen through a lens. Instead of resembling a cushion stuck full of red-headed pins and decked with knots of ribbon, the microscope view makes one think of an elaborate pagoda ornamented with filigree work, carving and exquisite bits of sculpture, the whole structure expressed in miniature floral form.

Mountain of Sulphur.
By looking on a map of the South seas, one can find the New Hebrides, about 900 miles east of Queensland, Australia, and southeast of the Solomon Islands. At the north end of the group is an island called Vanua Lava. This island is a mountain, a big one, 1,600 feet high and covering an area of 100 square miles. But the remarkable thing about it is that it is composed wholly of sulphur. Nothing like it is to be found anywhere in the world.

Card of Thanks.
John Mower wishes to express his gratitude to the relatives and friends who in any way helped him in this recent bereavement through the loss of his wife and infant daughter Theresa, by their kindly words of sympathy and assistance and also for the many beautiful floral tributes.
Signed,

WOMAN IS TRAPPER

South Dakota Woman Makes $16 as Result of First Day's Efforts. Trapping is the principal activity in the section around the Sunset, B. D. since the opening of the season and a large number of men and several women are back attending trap lines at Jackson Henry and Thompson and Spirit Lake. Rodney Brant was the first trapper to bring in any great amount of furs, his returns from the first ten days of the season netting him more than $100. The Cunningham brothers and Frank and Henry Miller also have made big catches. At least one woman is active in trapping, Mrs. Elmer Colwell bringing in nine rat hides, worth nearly $15, as the result of her first day's trapping in the sloughs near here.

Stop Blasting Until Eggs Are Hatched. Ninety-three eggs in an incubator caused the suspension of blasting in connection with work on two residences in Des Moines, Ia. The owner of the eggs requested police to stop the work until the eggs were hatched. The workmen agreed to suspend operations.

FATE REVOLVING ABOUT OLD MARRIAGE LICENSE

Bureau and Clergyman Did Not Agree About the Ancient Date.

Fate revolving around a marriage license issued in 1912, worked its devious way for ten years with Daniel O. Yazy and Miss Lou Bradbury, both of Detroit, when Daniel, after a stormy voyage on the sea of matrimony, through the divorce court and back to "double harness," remarried the first choice of his heart here. Daniel and Lou were married in the early 1900's, but quarreled and were divorced. The couple were sweethearts from school days in Indiana and, as they say now, "their quarrel was all about nothing."

Then Daniel met another "love" and led her to the altar, but within a few years he was back in the divorce court again. In 1912 Daniel met Lou again and began to court his former first wife. Things approached a stage where he thought it advisable to have a marriage license handy, and he secured one, but Lou proved coy and refused to take "the chance." And so for the last ten years Daniel has been trying to persuade Lou he was the "right man."

He succeeded and the couple went before a minister who agreed to marry them, but when he took a look at the license dated 1912 he told them to get a new one. The license bureau held though that with a new envelope to replace the time-worn wrapper, it was as good as new and the minister would have to be satisfied with a 1912 date.

"MYSTERY" MAN SAYS HE CAN RAISE DEAD EASILY

Dr. Octavio Kelly Pedon, the "mystery" man from Brazil, who claims that he can easily restore life to the dead, and can change a black man to white, is here shown with the machine by which he claims special pigments are introduced into the blood which will change a black man to white. He explained that his process of restoring life to the dead involves massage of the heart and the introduction of a special serum into the blood.

VANITY CASE A WEAPON

Girl Hits Holdup Man With It and He Shoots Himself.

A woman's vanity case earned its right to be classed as a weapon of defense when dexterous use of one by Miss Millie Congdon of Stockton, Cal., caused a bandit to shoot himself in the leg.

The bandit, Frank Lynons, attempted to hold up Miss Congdon and Edward Epsen, with whom she was riding in an automobile. Lynons and another bandit boarded the machine when a tire blew out. Epsen was ordered to drive to a secluded spot.

Miss Congdon beat off the second robber standing on the running board with her vanity case. She then brought it down on the wrist of Lynons, who pointed his pistol at her. The weapon was discharged and the bullet entered his leg. He was overpowered by Epsen.

GOVERNEUR MORRIS'S Famous Story, TALE OF TWO WORLDS

Seemed to Be Something Wrong. Kenneth's mother had been to the hospital and Kenneth was waiting impatiently for her return. The day of her homecoming he took a chair up to the window and watched every auto pass with his little nose flattened against the window pane. Suddenly an auto pulled up, his mother looked out and waved, and Kenneth dashed madly out to the steps to greet her. Mother was overjoyed at seeing him, she began to cry, and Kenneth looked at her and said: "Oh, mother dear, ain't you all well yet?"

Moons of the Planets. A moon is an attendant that circles about the planet of a sun. It is the satellite of a satellite. The distinction between moon and planet is not one of size. Two moons in the solar system—Titan of Saturn and Ganymede of Jupiter—are larger than the planet Mercury, and rival the planet Mars. Many moons encircle the asteroids, or tiny planets. A satellite is held in sway by both sun and planet. It is ruled by two masters, and of them the sun is always the stronger partner.

A Draughty Door. Doors that do not fit very well are often the cause of draughts. This trouble may be overcome by cutting narrow strips from the inner tube of a discarded bicycle tire and fastening them neatly down on the door frame. If the strips are cut exactly to fit they will not be noticeable, for the rubber is not thick enough to make the door difficult to close, yet it will entirely exclude all draughts. The rubber also deadens the noise when the door is suddenly banged.—York Post.

Bowling is Old Diversion. Bowling once was forbidden by law. The game was originally named "the game" and was called "clothes" one day being given as: "Clothes, the game, nine-pins; forbidden by statute, 17 Edw. IV." The prohibition afterward withdrawn and the game became very popular. It was also a popular gambling game in the United States and in some states prohibited by law. The law was evaded by adding another pin, calling it ten-pins.

WILKES WENTERS SAW AN OLD RUSSIAN SHIP

She Was Supposed to Have Been Sunk But Was Floating in the Sea.

A historic Russian side-wheel steamer, the Polotsk, built seventy years ago, is the latest addition to the phantom fleet reported by Bering sea Eskimos, as seen this winter in the vast area of ice that surrounds the Polar regions.

A recent movement of the ice field northward in January brought it nearest to Northern Alaska for many years, and members of several tribes were hunting and started one night to see the old steamer riding in the ice pack. An investigation disclosed the identity of the oldtime ship. That night the ice pack moved beyond the horizon.

The Polotsk was caught in ice near St. Michael in December, 1915, and disappeared the following spring during a great storm. It was believed she had been ground to kindling and sunk. The ship was built in 1856, the hull and ribs of Alaska yellow cedar and spruce. Her boiler was of copper and copper nails and bolts were used on the framework. When finished she was placed in service to carry ice and coal to San Francisco during the golden period.

Many deserted ice-bound ships are seen year after year in the mists of the Polar seas floating hither and yon at the mercy of wind and tide.

SEEDS FOR BRITISH TREES

Gathered in the Northwest and Shipped to Scotland.

The first shipment of Northwest forest seeds for the immediate reforestation of Great Britain has left Seattle for the old country.

It consists of 1,500 pounds of Douglas fir seeds and the same quantity of Sitka spruce seeds. The seeds go to the forest nursery at Wylle, Scotland.

The work of collecting the seeds and selecting only the choice has been going on all winter. A wide range of woods was covered by seed harvesters while many worked in Southeastern Alaska for the seeds of Sitka spruce.

The best seeds were those found in squirrel caches, but only a few came were taken from each cache because of the danger of destroying the real American forest. Many of the seeds buried by squirrels grow up into trees.

NEW WAY WITH BEARS

Trapper Puts Them in a Crate and Ships Them.

Most of the Warren county, Pa., hunters who go to the big woods after the bear are satisfied in shooting Mr. Bruin and then dragging him home to their neighbors to see, but Chas. Logue, state trapper, who has been working in this locality has a better solution to the bear-getting problem.

Logue, who has been in the trapping game for many years, places his traps and when the bear is caught places a collar around its neck and armed with a heavy club leads Mr. Bear to the nearest shipping point.

A short time ago, after capturing an extra large bear and bringing it in he was asked by moving picture men if he would take it out of the crate as he would enable them to take pictures. He willingly complied and the pictures taken are now on exhibition in Pittsburgh.

ALLEY CAT IS WINNER

Stray That Was Picked Up Gets First Prize in Show.

From the lowly estate of a stray "alley kitten" to the first prize winner among all the short-haired cats entered in the recent northern Indiana poultry and pet stock show at Marion, Ind., is the remarkable transformation of "Peggy," the prize cat owned by Ralph Custer, aged eight, and entered in the exhibit.

One night not many months ago the boy found the half-starved kitten in an alley. He took it to his home and fed it. The boy cared for "Peggy" continuously and the half-starved kitten of the alley became a beautiful cat.

When the show was announced Custer insisted that the cat be entered, and now "Peggy" bears a blue ribbon.

Too Busy Otherwise.

"DROWNED DICK" ALIVE

Man Whose Shipwrecked Remains the "Drowned Dick" Is Not Talkative.

"Drowned Dick," the only and original "Drowned Dick," whose supposed death of being in the early and exciting days of the Black Hills turned the heads for many months, was one of the speakers at the annual meeting of the Society of Black Hills Pioneers, at Mount Park, S. D.

Like the hero of the various novels, the living "Drowned Dick" is a man of few words. When called upon to make an address he arose and gave utterance to the following brief comment:

"The rookie who has never seen action was always willing to tell of his experiences, but the veteran who has been through it all could not talk of it; it cuts too deep."

Thieves in Store Bath and Dress.
Two burglars broke into the clothing store owned by Jay Smith, at Cardington, O., took a bath, and rigged themselves out in new clothes. They left a note thanking the proprietor.

Investigate Volcano.

Extensive drillings into the great active volcano Kilaua on the island of Hawaii, will be undertaken during the year in an endeavor to determine the heat of the volcano, the quantity of steam underneath, the mineral constituents and the solution of other related questions, according to an announcement of the government volcanologist at Hawaii. "The places of most interest are where the ground is hot from recent volcanic activity," the scientist said. "It is aimed to penetrate the surface where the lava flows are of known date so as to learn what changes of temperature underground have taken place with the passage of time. If high temperatures are maintained, possibly at red heat for years, it would be possible to utilize the heat for power." Kilaua now is unusually quiet, but a "diving" up in March, to the equinox, is expected," the scientist said.

"Cut to the Nth."

This phrase signifies wholly, or to the utmost degree, unnoticed by a friend. The expression is taken from a mathematical formula, where a stands for any number. "Cut to the nth, plus one," signifies more than any number.

THUNDERSTORMS MADE AT WILL

This Modern Jove Hurts His Own Thunderbolts.

ALL EXCEPT THE CLOUDS

Dr. C. P. Steinmetz Succeeds in Producing and Controlling an Indoor Thunderstorm With All Characteristics of Its Natural Brother—Spits Black of Wood and Demolishes Tree—Hopes to Aid Development of Lightning Arresters.

Schenectady, N. Y., has a modern Jove who sits on his throne in a laboratory of the General Electric company and hurls thunderbolts at will. He is Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz, electric wizard, who announced he has succeeded in producing and controlling an indoor thunderstorm with all the characteristics of its natural brother except the thunder clouds.

At a demonstration of his lightning generator a few days ago the familiar forked tongues flashed through the laboratory with a deafening crash, splintered a large block of wood, hurling the fragments 25 feet, and ripped a miniature tree from top to base. The bolt carried the energy of 1,000,000 horse power—about one five-hundredths of the energy of a natural lightning bolt, Dr. Steinmetz estimates—and lasted for the one hundred-thousandth part of a second.

Dr. Steinmetz hopes his apparatus will contribute largely to the development of lightning arresters, as it provides close range of the phenomenon that Benjamin Franklin began to investigate years ago with his kite, string and key.

Too Short to Work.
His experiments have convinced him, however, that there is little likelihood of man's realizing his dream of harnessing thunderbolts and making them work. Despite their tremendous energy, he says, their life is so short that, harnessed, they would be worth only a few cents apiece.

"In our lightning generator," he said, "we get a discharge of 10,000 amperes at over 100,000 volts—that is, power of over 1,000,000 horse power—lasting for a hundred-thousandth part of a second. This gives us the explosive tearing and shattering effect of real lightning, so that, for instance, a piece of small tree exposed to the discharge is mechanically torn to pieces. A piece of wire struck by the flash vanishes in dust."

High Voltage Condenser.
Dr. Steinmetz's generator consists essentially of a high voltage condenser in the form of 200 glass plates. These are arranged in two rows, in groups of fifty, and are capable of holding 120,000 volts of electricity.

One end of the double row of condensers corresponds to the thundercloud in the sky, in which an electrical current is gradually moved up and increased by the concentration of the raindrops, as Dr. Steinmetz has shown. The other end of the condenser plates corresponds to the earth.

When the tension of the stored electrical energy becomes greater than the generator will hold the discharge takes place. The lightning flash is seen, the thunder rolls—represented by a loud snapping sound—and the bolt strikes.

TO SHELVE MORE SHIPS

Orders Issued to Put Hundred More Vessels Out of Commission.

Fifty additional destroyers and almost three score auxiliary naval craft have been ordered put out of commission to save fuel, according to an announcement by Secretary of the Navy Denby. The destroyers are in addition to the 100 ordered out of commission some time ago, and will leave the navy with 70 destroyers in full commission.

Two gunboats, the Albany and the New Orleans, now on Asiatic duty, also will be placed out of commission and sold as soon as they can be brought home. They will be replaced abroad by the gunboats Sacramento and Asheville.

Make Two-Cent Motor Fuel.
Fuel for motorcars, manufactured at a cost of 2 cents a gallon, is to be tested by a syndicate of Chicago and Detroit men. The new oil will be sold at a price considerably less than that of gasoline, the manufacturers announce.

Good Will, Great Need.
Good will that lacks action is like faith without works. Thinking well needs doing well to bring results. The main trouble these days is there is too much thinking and too little doing. For the whole world is crying for good will—carried to practical results.—Grit.

Victor Brady who was arrested on September 24, 1921, by Deputy Sheriff Jacob Hubert of the town of Rosendale and who has been in the county jail on a peace warrant was discharged by the court. Brady was brought to the jail and later was sent to the Napanoch Institution for Mental Defectives but was returned to the county jail from that institution and has since been in jail. District Attorney Traver moved the discharge of the prisoner who had been in the jail almost the limit allowed by law.

Robert J. Smith, indicted by the grand jury on a charge of grand larceny, first degree, alleged to have been committed in the town of Saugerties in September of last year was arraigned and entered a plea of not guilty. He was arraigned for later in the day. The charge is that of securing money from the Saugerties bank under false pretences.

It is probable that in some of the twenty-seven cases on the calendar defendants may later plead guilty while several of the other cases will undoubtedly be tried next week. Court went into recess until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

FISHER'S LECTURE ON BURROUGHS

A particularly enjoyable, and to many delightfully reminiscent lecture on "With John Burroughs in his Favorite Haunts," was given at the high school auditorium Wednesday evening by Dr. G. Clyde Fisher, assistant curator and lecturer of the American Museum of Natural History of New York city. Dr. Fisher was brought to Kingston by the Audubon Society of the high school. He was introduced by Mr. Dunbar of the high school faculty.

Dr. Fisher well said that he had many beautiful slides of John Burroughs and his favorite haunts and many beautiful recollections, both of which were generously shared with the audience. The speaker laid especial emphasis on Mr. Burroughs as a great literary naturalist, whose greatest legacy to the world is his books, and who considered his books his own best autobiography.

After telling of becoming acquainted with Mr. Burroughs whom he had so much admired since the reading of his first book years ago, and of the ensuing friendship, Dr. Fisher told of his first visit to Riverby and Slabides and gave many exquisitely tinted pictures of the famous naturalist, both at his real home, Riverby and in and about the retreat which is so well known as Slabides at West Park. These included pictures of birds and flowers of those localities, as well as some of Burroughs's distinguished visitors.

Quite another set of pictures were those taken of Burroughs and Theodore Roosevelt in Yellowstone Park, but these were not taken by Dr. Fisher himself, just the lantern slides prepared from photos sent him by Mr. Burroughs, the same having in some instances been taken by some unknown amateur.

The speaker told interestingly of the war of extermination so successfully waged by Burroughs, Roosevelt and others, a few years ago, against the fake naturalists.

Still a third group of pictures and reminiscences clustered about and showed Woodchuck Lodge and vicinity, as well as Burroughs's birthplace and there were pictures of his parents shown.

Some of the most charming of the pictures were firelight pictures of Mr. Burroughs either at Slabides, Riverby or Woodchuck Lodge, and Dr. Fisher very generously told any amateur photographers in the audience just how to make those remarkable pictures. The lecture closed with one of these slides.

VALVE THAT PUT RADIO ON FEET

"Thermionic Valve" Keystones of Arch of Modern Wireless.

DESCRIBED BY ITS INVENTOR

It is Extremely Simple in Construction, Says British Electrical Engineer, Who Designed It.—In the Same Category of Merit as Steam Engine, Power Loom and Sewing Machine—Its Use Explained in Simple Language

"The thermionic valve is an invention which is the keystone of the arch of modern wireless telegraphy. With out it this kind of telegraphy would have a very restricted use. With it we can telegraph from England to Australia at the rate of a hundred words or more a minute. We can speak telephonically to flying airplanes or airplanes 100 miles away and miles high in the sky. We can talk across stormy oceans many hundreds of miles as easily and often better than we can speak across the city by means of a telephone exchange. In short the thermionic valve is an invention worthy to stand in the same category of merit as the steam engine, the power loom, the sewing machine, or the petrol engine. Moreover unlike these inventions it is extremely simple in construction."

So says John Ambrose Fleming, D. Sc. fellow of the Royal Society, in a signed article in the Manchester Guardian. Doctor Fleming is a distinguished consulting electrical engineer, and lectures on applied mechanics in the university and has been professor of electrical engineering at University College, London since 1895. He has been intimately associated with the development of all the great applications of electrical science in the past twenty five years—the telephone, electric lighting and wireless telegraphy. He is the inventor of the thermionic valve, which has revolutionized wireless telegraphy and made possible wireless telephoning.

Approved by a Committee.

In the article here quoted Doctor Fleming writes:

"In the year 1910-20 an Imperial wireless telegraphy committee, appointed to consider the scheme of intercommunication between all parts of the British empire, reported to parliament the conclusions at which they had arrived. These were broadly as follows: (1) That the Imperial wireless stations should be established at distances of about 2000 miles connecting the various communities of the empire, (2) that the wireless system employed should be that making use of the thermionic valve, (3) that the stations be planned by a wireless commission composed of experts and that the construction of these stations should be entrusted to the engineering department of the general post office and the corresponding Indian and dominion authorities."

"The report of this wireless commission has just been issued and forms interesting reading to experts in wireless telegraphy. The general reader will however find its technicalities unintelligible in the absence of a little explanation. The first question he will ask is: What is this thermionic valve to which the committee attaches so much importance?"

"The thermionic valve consists merely of an incandescent electric lamp comprising a glass or silica bulb which is highly exhausted of its air and contains a filament of tungsten wire which can be rendered intensely hot by an electric current passed through it. It differs, however from an electric lamp by having the filament surrounded by two metal cylinders. The outer one is a cylinder formed of a solid plate of nickel and the inner one is either a spiral of nickel wire or else a cylinder of nickel gauze or network. These two cylinders do not touch each other or the filament, and they are attached to wires which are sealed through the wall of the bulb."

Atoms and Electrons.

"To explain the operation of this device we must remind the reader that modern research has shown that the atoms of which material substances are composed are themselves formed of still smaller atoms of electricity called electrons. An atom of matter is a very small thing. If 20,000,000 atoms of copper or gold were put in a row, like marbles touching each other, the row would only be an inch long. But an electron is still smaller. Its diameter is probably only one hundred thousandth of that of an atom. Electrons are of two kinds called positive and negative, and an atom is a sort of solar system in which a number of negative electrons revolve round a nucleus composed chiefly of positive electrons. In the case of metals some of these negative electrons escape easily from the atoms and probably jump about from atom to atom like bees in a garden flitting from flower to flower. The speed with which these free electrons dart about is sixty miles per second."

"The state we call an electric current in a wire is merely these free electrons as a whole drifting in one direction or surging to and fro without ceasing their irregular motion. When a wire, say of tungsten, is made very hot some of these free electrons escape from its surface, and this is called thermionic emission. If, then, we surround the hot wire by a cylinder of cold metal which is electrified positively, the escaping electrons are attracted to it, and the movement of negative electrons from the hot wire to the cold plate creates a thermionic current. Since then, negative electricity can pass from the hot wire to the cold metal cylinder but cannot pass in the opposite direction, such a lamp, with cylinder enclosing the filament, acts toward electricity as a valve. A pump acts toward water. It allows a flow to take place in one direction only. The writer of this article, who was the first to use in 1904 such an appliance in wireless telegraphy, called it an oscillation valve, a name subsequently changed to thermionic valve.

Credit to an American.
"In 1907 an addition was made to it by an American inventor, De Forest, consisting in the interpolation of a zig-zag of metal wire between the filament and the metal plate of a Fleming oscillation valve. This addition formed the starting point for new developments by numerous inventors in England, America and France, which have finally given us the remarkable appliance called a three-electrode thermionic valve or electron valve, which cannot only detect but magnify feeble electric oscillations and, more important still, can generate very powerful vibratory electric currents if the circuit connecting the outer cylinder, to the filament contains a battery or dynamo creating a steady electric voltage and if this circuit is properly connected to another circuit joining the perforated plate or grid with the filament."

"A Sort of Lighthouse."
"In this form it is called a transmitting valve, and we can by it generate the very powerful high-frequency to and fro or alternating electric currents in an aerial wire which are necessary in wireless telegraphy or telephony. These electric vibrations generate the electric waves which travel away through space from the aerial. The aerial wire, therefore, resembles a sort of lighthouse which is radiating invisible light. Transmitting valves are now made with silica or glass bulbs about the size and shape of a Rugby football. A large number can be harnessed together so as to generate enormous oscillatory currents. "At the great Carnarvon wireless station on the side of Snowdon, Mr. Conlon's Wireless Telegraph Company have built a valve panel containing about sixty large valves, which can put into the great aerial wires currents of three or four hundred amperes. The electric waves so generated can be detected by suitable receiving thermionic valves at all parts of the habitable earth."

Two Other Methods
"There are two other methods of creating the continuous electric waves now used in wireless telegraphy. One of these is by means of a high-frequency alternator which is a complicated kind of dynamo very different in principle from the alternators used for producing the low-frequency electric currents employed in electric lighting. Machines of this kind are installed in the great wireless stations at Long Island and at St. Asie near Paris. Again, there is another method which makes use of an electric arc. The thermionic valve has however great advantages in point of first cost as against the high frequency alternator, and it is superior to the arc generator because it gives a purer form of electric wave, less contaminated by a mixture of wave-lengths called higher harmonics and has other advantages in economy of power in signaling."

"The growth and development of the three methods of electric wave generation—namely by high-frequency alternators, arc and thermionic valve panels—will be watched by experts with great interest."

GIRL, 13, MADE A PRÉACHER

Is One of Seven Granted a License by Oklahoma M. E. Parley

A thirteen-year-old girl was among seven persons granted a license to preach by the Northeastern Oklahoma Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church at Tulsa, Okla., recently. She is Miss Fay Emery of Miami, Okla., who began preaching last summer in the mining districts near her home. She is in the seventh grade at school and says her ambition is to become a foreign missionary.

The girl became a church member two years ago and immediately became a Sunday school teacher. She became interested in all church activities and soon attracted the attention of her pastor. Under the direction of the Rev. George A. Kleinsteiber, she prepared a sermon and delivered it from his pulpit. Soon she was urged to address regularly the inmates of the Old Ladies' and Men's homes. Later she filled vacancies at Picher, Okla., and then preached at Baxter Springs.

SLEEPS THREE DAYS

Young Woman Then Woke Up of Her Own Accord

Miss Phyllis Hewitt, sixteen years of age, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Hewitt, who live near Corona, Ind., woke up Wednesday afternoon and on their return found the girl asleep. Monday morning the parents were unable to rouse the girl. A physician was called, but he failed to wake her.

King's Car Now a Nook

The king of the Belgians' automobile in which King Albert toured the battlefield during the war, is now doing duty as a motor hack at the railway station in Baltimore, says the Washington Star. It has a costly H-motor body on a long wheelbase, and the interior, from the velvet covering on the floor to the dome to the roof, is finished in mahogany and oak inlaid. The seats are upholstered more like costly furniture than like the usual automobile seat, and are covered with heavy gray velveteen material. The royal colors that once decorated these coverings have been removed.

9 A.M.—

and a week's washing out of the way

The old-fashioned housekeeper who had her washing on the line by 9 A. M. was a miracle in the neighborhood.

But today, hundreds of women—right in this city—have a whole week's washing entirely out of the way by 9 o'clock.

They simply gather up everything that needs washing and turn it over to our representative. Promptly, always on the same day, their clothes come back, beautifully clean and fresh—just as they like.

Try this better way—you'll find it a big relief to have no wash-women to pick up after; no waiting; no worry. Phone us, and we'll gladly explain all the details.

IRISH REFUGEE KILLED IN N. Y.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
New York, April 14.—The war for freedom in Ireland is believed today to have reached a long arm to Central Park, New York, and caused the shooting and probable fatal wounding of Patrick Connor, 26, a bookkeeper who came here from Ireland about a year ago.

Connor, it is understood left Ireland because of threats of death, under which he is said to have lived in a state of fear even in the heart of New York.

The young Irishman's assailant shot him once when he was near Central Park West and 86th street. Then with no apparent concern regarding capture, stalked his man, wounded, but not brought down, to the other side of the park where three more shots were emptied into his body.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Jaunty Frock For The Growing Girl.

3832. Simply made and finished with artistic embroidery, this model cannot fail to please any girl in her "teens." In velveteen, serge, or wool jersey it will be serviceable and quite smart. The closing is under the left side of the first panel. This is a splendid design for the use of two materials.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. A 12 year size will require 2 1/2 yards of material 36 inches wide.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Our slogan has ever been:—"The Greatest Service to the Greatest Number." We have never skimped quality in order to dazzle the eye with low prices, but have ever maintained the highest values even when our prices were below those of our competitors.

"Peace on earth, good will to men," is the message which Easter brings. We will continue to do our share to realize as in the past, so in the future we will try to add to the sum of human happiness by honest methods, reliable foods and unsurpassed values.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BILLY BULLFROG

"I've been asked to address this meeting of frogs," said Billy Bullfrog. "All the frogs are younger than I am and so I am chosen as their speaker. Besides that I have been to frog school for a longer time."

"I have learned many frog lessons and now I will tell some of the frogs about the things I know."

"In the first place it is well to sleep as late as possible in the springtime. That is, we want to be up when it is surely springtime and not still winter time. And so that we will not take any chances about this it is just as well not to be up and about too soon."

"The early part of time will do perfectly. Of course some members of our family who have been kept in warm springs in conservatories or people who live in the winter have not always been sleeping."

"Does it is the best home and shallow water and deep water are equally pleasant."

"We like to hide under weeds and water lilies, not it is well to be able to live in hiding spots."

"There is a good plan to keep a few things to eat in our hiding spots."

"It is always wise to do a day from home to do a day of your hunting. You know of good marketing."

"It is well for you are being powerful swimmers."

"Good By"

Your voices must always sound deep and hoarse, too like a bullfrog's voice should sound.

"Close your eyes when you are diving and swimming rapidly. Then open them to see where you are and then take another dive."

"You know, it is cars so you will swim slowly in this account. Your car tires are covered by blue skin and protected in this way."

"The Mrs. Bullfrogs are more apt to wear bright suits than we are and, they also wear rather dirty white fronts. We wear fine yellow collars and are more apt to wear green suits than any other color."

"That is another one of the reasons we're so apt to be taken for our cousins the Green Frogs."

"Do not bother to sing in chorus with other frogs but sing by your selves any time you feel like it. That makes each of us seem more important."

"Then people hearing one of us will say:

"Oh, I hear a bullfrog."

"That makes each of us seem more important."

"Always swallow the air to get it down to your lungs for the openings on the roof of your mouths are openings of the tubes which come from your nose or nostrils."

"Your voice goes back from your tongue into your throat."

"Taking it all in all you are pretty interesting and I am too for I am Billy Bullfrog who is giving this lecture today on the ways of bullfrogs."

"Sometimes a big fellow will eat a little fellow. That too is somewhat of a family risk at times. But let each decide what he wants to do himself."

"We do not care about all going around together. We would rather each go our own way quite happily."

"In our family the tadpoles do not become frogs during the first year of their life as they do in the Leopard Frog family. But we do not want to do as the Leopard Frogs do, not even as the Pickerel Frogs do, for their tadpoles become frogs in the first year."

"And now jump off top off swim off, dive off for the lecture is over with and I must go hunting about for food. I feel the need of food. I want some delicacies which I'll be sure to find in this nice pond. Good by, good a room, good a room."

"Good by, good a room, good a room, said the other bullfrogs and they all went off in different parts of the pond to look for food, for all of them felt hungry."

The Wrong Number

The motorist had had the misfortune to upset his car and so he telephoned to the nearest garage for assistance.

"Hello. Can you send me help?" he called over the phone. "I've turned turtle."

"Sorry," came the reply. "This is a garage, what you want is the zoo."

CHINESE PIRATES ARE VERY POLITE

After Looting Ship Chief Apologizes to Captain

GET LOST WORTH $120,000

Captain is Compelled to Navigate His Ship According to Orders of Pirate
 Chief—Bullies, Passengers' Money and Jewelry Collected at Lohu—Captain is Compensated by Chief for Gold Watch Taken From Him by One of Band.

The most polite pirate extant to the chief of the band that looted the steamer Kwang Lee on the China sea recently. An account has reached this country of this remarkable case of piracy, in which $120,000 in bullion and passengers' money and jewelry was stolen and a native passenger was murdered.

The Kwang Lee, 1,400 tons, owned by the China Merchants' Steam Navigation company, commanded by Cap-
 hai on Dec. 18 for Hongkong with a general cargo and 250 Chinese passengers. All went well until Dec. 15, when, off Amoy, two Chinese passengers entered the captain's cabin at midnight, pointed revolvers at him and fired a blank cartridge. Captain Crawford was forced out of the cabin and told if he offered any resistance he would be instantly shot and thrown overboard. He was ordered along the main deck and shown into the mess-room, where he found the second engineer. Armed sentries were placed on guard at the door and shortly afterward the chief engineer and other officers were made prisoners.

Gave Him Sailing Orders.
 At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the captain was ordered onto the bridge, and the leader of the pirates demanded the position of the ship and the distance to Chapel Island. On being informed that the Kwang Lee was eighteen miles due south of the island the pirates became very excited. A number of them collected on the bridge and, after an animated discussion
 Captain Crawford was asked the distance to Hongkong, and was then ordered at the point of a revolver to steam due south.

At 10 o'clock the same night the course was altered towards Swatow, the captain being informed that if he went near the shore he would be shot.

During the night and a great part of the following day the pirates occupied themselves in looting the vessel. Passengers' trunks were smashed open and everything portable removed. The cabins were ransacked and officers relieved of all personal belongings, including evening dress clothes. Early in the proceedings a Chinese passenger, Se Po Kwan, was shot and his body heaved overboard. The strong room was opened and five boxes containing $20,000 were lowered into a junk, together with passengers' clothing, money and jewelry, valued at $100,000.

On leaving the boat the robbers gave strict instructions that the vessel was not to leave the bay before 8 a. m. on Dec. 17. Directly the junk left the vessel the members of the crew were released and the necessary repairs to the engines were rushed through.
 Three hours later the vessel crept out of the bay and made full speed for Hongkong.

Courteous Pirate Chief.

Captain Crawford is of the opinion that there was no collusion between the crew of the junk and the pirates.
 The junk was held up and ordered to come alongside. The chief of the pirates was courteous and polite, and upon leaving the vessel apologized for the inconvenience caused, and hoped the captain would think of them in a friendly manner. He offered to shake hands with Captain Crawford.

As a little memento of the occasion the robber presented the captain with his gold watch and chain to compensate him for the loss of his own, which had been looted by one of the gang.
 A silver-mounted walking stick was presented to the second officer, and a Chinese lady passenger was called forward and $100 given her with instruction to share it among the passengers on arrival at Hongkong.

GAVE UNIQUE SERVICE

Cigar-maker Has Helped the Police of Monroe as Volunteer.

For more than 20 years, Jesse J.
 Dussseau of Monroe, Mich., cigar-maker, has occupied the unique role of an auxiliary police signal service.

The service he has voluntarily given the city has become almost an institution. Dussseau's shop is close to police headquarters. So frequent have the calls been to his shop to summon police officers that he has equipped himself with a shrill whistle to sound an "R O S" for officers whose beats may have taken them a block or two distant.

Mayor James Gilmore has proposed public recognition for the service Dusseu has given.

Coin in Purse Saves Woman's Life.

A silver dollar in her pocketbook saved the life of Mrs. Ida L. McCormick of Dallas, Tex., when her husband shot her. The bullet went through the woman's arm, struck the coin, and was deflected from her heart.
 The lead was found in the purse. The husband committed suicide after wounding his wife.

RONDOUT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH'S ANNUAL SESSION

Opposed to Warts Street Gas Pumps — Trustees Elected.

At the annual meeting of the congregation of the Rondout Presbyterian Church held Thursday evening in the chapel of the church a resolution was adopted opposing the granting of any applications to install gasoline pumps on Warts street or in the immediate vicinity of the Rondout Creek Bridge. It was brought out that the board of public works, to whom the resolution is addressed, is opposed to the placing of gas tanks on residential streets, and that no applications will be granted except in business sections or where there is already a long established garage business.

Frank R. Powley and Hugh McCullough, elders of the church, were elected moderators of the annual meeting, and after an opening prayer by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles G. Ellis, they took charge of the session. The annual election resulted in electing to the board of trustees, Clarence S. Rowland, Maurice M. Durkee and Louis Bowers for a term of three years.

The annual reports of the various boards and societies of the church were read and showed that the church has just closed one of the most prosperous years in its history. The expenses of conducting the church during the year amounted to $6,087.61. All bills were paid and the year closed with a cash balance on hand of $531, and over $5,000 in the endowment fund of the church.

The Ladies Aid Society have a cash balance at the close of the church year of $1,096.19, and the Woman's Missionary Society also has a small cash balance on hand. This evening Good Friday services will be held in the church chapel and Sunday morning communion service will be held with special Easter music at both church services. The Sunday school will also have special services.
